CARPENTIER'S CAREER
HOW PIT BOY IN MINE ROSE TO FAME WITH HIS FISTS

Georges Carpentier has come to the United States from France to fight Jack Dempsey for the heavyweight title less known than any fighter who ever went into a world championship fight. Hal Cochran, in this story of Carpentier's life, written for The Republican, tells of the struggles of the one-time mine pit boy in rising to the light-heavyweight championship of the world.

BY HAL COCHRAN

Chapter 1
Fifteen years ago Georges Carpentier, at the age of 12, was pit boy in a coal mine in Lens, France. That little obscure mining town had been the scene of his childhood play days and of his early schooling.

He was born of poor parents and as soon as he was old enough, joined his father, a miner, in daily trips to the inside of the earth. The youth's weekly earnings went to help keep the wolf from the Carpentier door.

In those days Georges was a timid, appearing, fair-haired youth, with an appearance far from that of a lad who would indulge in anything that required muscle and brawn. He was generally looked upon as a fireless mother's boy.

Work in darkness all day long, away from sunshine and open air, didn't appeal to Georges. He wanted to do something else. With that thought ever on his mind, he occasionally went, after working hours, to a boxing school that had been opened in the town by a Prof. Franco Desamps.

Like many other youngsters, Georges just hung around and watched fighters work. Finally he became well known as one of the youngsters in the town, and was now and then allowed to slip on a pair of gloves himself and mix in the sparring and battling.

One night he gave a much bigger fellow a good drubbing. Desamps witnessed the bout and was much impressed with the fair-haired kid's showing. Georges was encouraged to come to the school more regularly.

take their son under his wing and train him. At first there was much objection, but Desamps' persistence won out and Georges left his pit-boy task for all time.

From then on the youngster was at the gym almost day and night. Rough edges were trained off of him and he was eventually against the best fighters in Desamps' lot in short notice. Mme. Vanhilbrouq, Desamps' mother-in-law, took an interest in the boy from the start.

Outside battles, with a money angle to them, however, were few expressed their thanks for the talk. A supper was served which was immensely enjoyed by the assembly and it was voted a most profitable two hours spent in learning important and valuable points in Salt River valley business conditions.

HOUSE EMPLOYEES ON CO-OPERATIVE PLAN
The builders exchange reports one of the most successful meetings of the year held at the exchange headquarters last evening.

H. B. Warner manager of the Union Oil company, Phoenix, gave an interesting talk on how that company expects to house its employees in Phoenix under the co-operative plan. The homes will be built for employees on lots selected by the employee, thereby developing a citizen and taxpayer who gives the privilege of home ownership to the company without any cost whatever to the employee in the way of interest. Mr. Warner also explained a credit system recently adopted by the Union Oil company whereby ranchers may avail themselves of long time credits with that concern.

The important meeting was marked by a splendidly drafted explanation of the industrial compensation law of Arizona by Senator Celso Stoddard in which he detailed all the different points which concern the employer and employee. The assembly was very much gratified with the ease in which this bill was explained and all
